Panthers roar to AMCU tournament crown

Cagers ride two weekend victories to best record in eight seasons

by Ken Dickson

After ambushing Western Illinois Friday in Macomb, the Panthers returned home and soundly whipped Southwest Missouri State 75-64 Sunday for Association of Mid-Continent Universities' post-season basketball tournament title.

Eastern, 20-10 overall, completed a three-game sweep of conference opponents in the tournament to give the Panthers their best record in eight seasons, their first 20-win year under coach Rick Samuels and the tournament championship.

Lantz Gym, which contained only 2,200 fans, erupted repeatedly to spark the Panthers to 78 percent shooting in the first half and eventually to the win.

The Panthers heard with four minutes left in Friday's semifinal game at Western Illinois University that Southwest Missouri had upset No. 1 seeded Cleveland State, which meant the winner of the Eastern-Western game would host the tournament's final game.

The news seemed to give Eastern an extra boost. The Panthers outscored Western 10-3 in the final two minutes and avenged two regular season losses with a 74-67 win.

The players and coaches chanted "We're going home, we're going home..." all the way from the floor to the locker room and that excitement carried through to Sunday's game against Southwest Missouri with a phenomenal first half.

Eastern shot 18-for-23 (78.2 percent), had 15 assists and only three turnovers in the first half. Steve Hopkins was 5-for-5, Tim Dykstra 4-for-4, Androff 2-for-2 and Doug Crook 4-for-5 from the field.

The Bears, who normally light up scoreboards with outside shooting, shot only 10-for-27 (37 percent) in the first half and 43 percent in the game.

"We were a step behind all day," Southwest Missouri coach Charlie Spoonhour said. "They took control.

Even when we scored, we just couldn't stop them from scoring. I think we'd have to wait 'til tomorrow for them to cool off."

The Panthers' 37-24 lead at intermission blossomed into a 52-32 advantage with 14:10 left. The Bears, who finished 17-13 overall, were 5-for-8 in the first six minutes of the second half, but the Panthers were 6-of-8 and still adding to the lead.

As the final 10 minutes wore down, Southwest Missouri's guards Brian Smith and Randy Stange singed the nets with outside shooting, but Eastern still coasted. The closest the Bears got in the final 10 minutes was 10 points, with 57 seconds left.

"Coming into the game I knew if they (Southwest Missouri) shot 55 to 60 percent we would be in trouble," Eastern coach Rick Samuels said. "We don't have a quick enough defense to stop that kind of a game... but it was the other way around."

"We really came ready to play. We were hungry. I told the players the winner of this tournament would have to be the hungriest."

Crook led Eastern in scoring with 16 points. Jon Collins, who scored only two points in the first half, finished with 15. Hopkins added 13. Troy Richardson ended the game with 10 points and eight assists.

Southwest Missouri's Smith and Stange scored 16 points each.

Eastern finished the game with 67.3 percent shooting (33-for-49).

Chernenko's health questioned after group departs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A high-ranking Soviet delegation Sunday unexpectedly cut short by two days its visit to the United States, raising speculation about Soviet leader Konstantin Chernenko's health, U.S. officials said.

The delegation, led by Vladimir Shcherbitsky, a member of the Soviet Union's ruling Politburo, was the highest-ranking Soviet group to visit the United States in more than a decade. It was leaving for New York, and was to take a special flight to Moscow on Monday, officials said.

"They have requested that they be able to leave early," Vivienne Ascher, a State department spokeswoman in Washington, said of the group that arrived in the United States March 3.

Mrs. Ascher declined to comment on speculation that the delegation's sudden departure may have been prompted by death or critical illness of Chernenko.

Chernenko, 73, head of the Communist Party and the government, is known to have respiratory problems and has dropped from public view for lengthy periods in recent months. He made two appearances on television in late February after a two-month absence from public view.

But a U.S. official in Washington, speaking on condition he not be identified, said, "The speed with which the group is returning indicates that Chernenko is either dead or is expected to die within a matter of hours."

This official, who had been briefed by telephone from San Francisco Sunday evening by American officials traveling with the Soviet delegation, said the Soviets "made it clear that there was no problem with the trip—that they were not leaving because of anything that had happened in the United States."

Another informed U.S. official, who also insisted on anonymity, said the Soviets declined to say why they wished to cut short the visit.

Regarding a possible link with Chernenko's health, this official said: "As far as we know, nothing is going on in Moscow."

An administration official, also speaking only if not further identified, said the U.S. Embassy in Moscow had received "nothing official" from Soviet authorities. He added that Radio Moscow apparently switched late Sunday night Moscow time from a comedy program to playing classical music.

It was not clear whether the programming change was unscheduled. A sudden switch from regularly scheduled programming to somber classical music has in the past heralded the death of Soviet leaders.

Infant death rate high in Illinois

WASHINGTON—The babies of young, poor, minority-group mothers in Illinois have suffered some of the nation's worst survival prospects, according to the latest study by a child welfare lobbying group.

The report, prepared by the Children's Defense Fund, said that in 1982 Illinois had the sixth-worst infant-death rate among all states and the District of Columbia.

"I think the state has recognized that they have a severe problem—one more severe than many other states," said Kay Johnson, a CDF official who worked on the study.

In 1982—the last year in which statistics are available from every state—13.6 infants, or babies up to 1 year old, died in Illinois for every 1,000 born alive.

Report says more farms hurting

WASHINGTON—An unreleased Agriculture Department report says 93,000 U.S. farms, holding $47 billion in debt, are technically insolvent or on the verge of going broke—a 45 percent increase from earlier figures.

The figures are in contrast with the number cited last week by President Reagan when he vetoed legislation intended to provide emergency credit to farmers suffering from declining asset values and insufficient cash flow.

Then, Reagan said, "The truth of the matter is, in need of immediate help are less than 4 percent or around 4 percent at best of all the farmers in the United States." Agriculture Secretary John Block later said Reagan "misspoke" and really knows the situation is far worse.

The new report by the department's Economic Research Service, circulating on Capitol Hill, reiterates data issued several months ago indicating that some 386,000 of the 2.3 million total U.S. farms—or nearly 18 percent—are likely to be suffering some financial stress.

Girl OK after 14-story chute fall

CHICAGO—Janitor Richard Courtney dismissed the moans he heard while he was dumping garbage because he thought they came from a nearby apartment. But he couldn't dismiss the sight of a child's hand reaching up from the trash.

The child was 3-year-old Quida Stone, who had fallen 14 stories down a garbage chute Friday in a South Side housing complex and spent the night covered—but saved—by trash in a broken compactor, police said.

The trash apparently had broken the girl's fall and kept her warm throughout the night, police Sgt. Al Davis said Saturday.

Quida escaped with only minor injuries, Davis said, adding that police were unsure whether she fell or was pushed. Police said Sunday they still were uncertain.

The girl had been in the care of her godmother, Reasie Hobbs, when the youngster went to the 14th-floor hall to play with her 5-year-old brother and 2-year-old sister. The others returned at about 5 p.m., but Quida was not with them.

Four die, 1,700 homeless in flood rain in forecast compounds woes

PEORIA (AP)—The Red Cross estimated Sunday that 50 homes along the Illinois River were destroyed and nearly 1,200 others damaged in last week's killer flood. Meanwhile, state prison inmates were pressed into sandbagging on the 272-mile channel's lower end to shore up a dike protecting a small town.

Springlike weather and slowly falling floodwaters Sunday allowed people along some shoreline areas to begin raking up trash left behind by the raging river, which left four men drowned, 1,700 people homeless and 12,000 acres of farmland submerged.

The National Weather Service, meantime, had bad news. It forecast up to an inch of rain over the entire river basin and some local thunderstorms.

A weather service spokesman said the showers were not expected to cause the Illinois River to reverse its falling action "but might just retard the fall."

At Peoria, where a 60-mile stretch of shoreline north and south of the city was most severely flooded, the river fell another third of a foot overnight, the Army Corps of Engineers said Sunday. That brought the water's level to a full foot lower than its Friday peak of 10.4 feet above an 18-foot-flood stage—the third-highest ever recorded.

At Meredosia, 85 miles downstream from

Peoria, about a dozen inmates from a nearby state prison manned a sandbagging line Sunday to bolster a dike protecting the town of 1,300 people from a lake that flooded last week when the river levee broke, said Village Clerk Cindy McDannold.

She said the river crested there early Sunday and then began falling, almost imperceptibly.

"But I would say we still have some problems ahead of us," said Mrs. McDannold, adding that the village's sewage treatment plant flooded Saturday and began dumping raw sewage into the waterway.

Dick Chance, assistant damage assessment manager for the Peoria Red Cross, said Sunday that a dozen survey teams Saturday found 70 flooded homes in the four worst-hit counties lining either side of the swollen river near Peoria.

Teams reported an additional 525 homes damaged to varying degrees along the waterway from its source 50 miles southwest of Chicago Loop to its confluence with the Mississippi River at Grafton, 25 miles northwest of St. Louis, said.

Authorities had no damage estimate. Federal and state teams are to begin surveying damage Tuesday, working downriver from the Illinois source. Governor Thompson has declared counties along the waterway as disaster areas.

Arms talks pivoting on 'Star Wars'

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—U.S. and Soviet negotiators restart arms talks Tuesday, with America's plans for a space-based defense against nuclear missiles expected to be an early point of dispute.

President Reagan has expressed his determination to press ahead with his Strategic Defense Initiative, dubbed "Star Wars." His ultimate goal is eliminating the threat of continent-spanning rockets.

The Soviet Union has objected to the project and suggested that unless it is halted, nuclear arms control in general would be jeopardized.

The Soviet Union's two major newspapers, the Communist Party's Pravda and the government's Izvestia, said Sunday that if the new Geneva talks are to have any chance of success, a ban on space weaponry is indispensable.

Complicated by the sharp dispute over Star Wars, the talks were sure to be difficult and long when they resume Tuesday after a lapse of more than 15 months.

Both negotiating teams were in this Swiss international conference city. Leaders of the two delegations issued upbeat statements, which tended to mask the toughness of the talks ahead.

The Soviet delegation, led by veteran arms negotiator Victor P. Karpov, arrived Sunday and projected "a truly historic goal—that of ultimately eliminating nuclear arms completely and everywhere."

The delegation, Karpov told reporters, had received instructions from the Soviet leadership "to negotiate in a businesslike and constructive manner."

Karpov warned, however, he would be seeking "equal security, which precludes either party from gaining unilateral advantage."

Max M. Kampelman, heading the American delegation which arrived on Saturday, said Reagan had instructed him "to spare no effort seeking to negotiate fair and equitable agreements." Kampelman promised that the United States will "thoroughly and responsibly explore all avenues" leading to accords.

Kampelman said it would be "folly" to expect that "profound" differences with Moscow would be bridged overnight.

Senate expected to retain activity-fee funds

by Lori Edwards

Thursday's Apportionment Board's decision to keep student-activity fee support of the Student Senate is likely to gain administrative and senate approval.

Student Senate will discuss the AB decision at its Wednesday meeting and will forward the recommendation to Glenn Williams, vice president for student affairs.

Williams will then make a recommendation to Eastern President Stanley Rives.

Tammy Walker, AB chairman and student government financial vice president said, "I think it won't be any problem" to get senate approval of the decision.

Senate Speaker Ron Wesel agreed saying, "I think all points pro and con were brought out at the AB meeting. That was good."

"Obviously, we feel we need to be funded," he added.

Walker said organizations which represent the vast majority of students should be funded by student fees. Those which come from departments and are academic in nature should be funded by general fees, she added.

"Student Senate has no affiliation with any department," she added.

"I'm glad AB took action to keep student-fee support of senate, and I hope that the administration agrees," she said. "For Student Senate to be effective it needs student fees."

From the administrative side, Williams agreed with the consensus at Thursday's AB meeting—student organizations should be funded by student fees and academic organizations should be funded by university appropriated fees.

"I think where its the state's responsibility, the organization should be under university appropriated fees," Williams said.

Rives said he will wait until he sees what William's recommendation is before he comments on senate funding.

However, Rives said the level of funding is a student issue because student government has gone through an "interesting period" referring to the senate retreat and former student body president Joe Butler.

Student governments can exist without student fees, Rives noted, citing the University of Illinois student government as an example.

"I'm not saying (Eastern's) student government should not be supported by student fees," Rives said, adding "senate would not cease to exist" without student fees.

In addition, Walker said she is not sure of what decision AB will reach regarding the student government executive payroll during senate budget deliberations Thursday.

She added that she hopes the executive payroll is not cut and does not believe it should be.

Walker told AB that officers give up the opportunity cost of not being able to work other jobs or doing other things with their time.

Wesel said although he uses the money he receives from his position to partially pay for his living expenses, he ran for his office to serve students.

He added that students working for other student-serving organizations, like sports and intramurals, also receive payment.

Student government officers work more than the 40 hours a month they are allotted working with petitions, new candidates and new programs, Wesel added.

Williams said he has asked senate to trace back executive payroll so he can find out when and why pay started.

Walker also said she hopes senate retreats are not cut from the senate budget because senators need retreats to get closer and work better together as a leadership organization.

"We do need to get away over-night," Walker said.

Wesel said he believes retreats are needed and have proven effective. But he added many students have a misconception of what happens at retreats.

On retreats, Wesel said, students learn about themselves, the organization and how to serve students.

However, Williams noted that while he believes some retreats are valuable, "all retreats don't have to go out to outer Mongolia to be successful. Retreats can be held effectively on campus."

Congress may break Reagan's 'no tax hike' promise

by Kevin McDermott
and the Associated Press

The Senate Budget Committee is falling so far behind in its labors to trim the federal deficit by $50 billion or more next year that a previously taboo subject—a tax increase—is now being talked about with increasing frequency.

The committee, despite Republican leaders' vows to honor President Reagan's campaign promise against a tax hike, will at least consider the possibility as it struggles to complete its 1986 budget outline, says chairman Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M.

Democrats on the panel are rallying behind a $150 billion three-year tax-hike package—which would mostly fall on businesses—formulated by Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C.

Republicans are showing more interest in the subject now than previously, although most still publicly cling to the party line that the deficit should be lowered by spending cuts alone.

Locally, there was disagreement on whether a tax increase is necessary to bring the federal deficit under control.

"The $200 billion deficit is killing us," Joe Connelly, an Eastern political science instructor said. "As Mondale said during the (November presidential) campaign, he thought that some increases would be necessary. Reagan said, 'over my dead body.'"

Connelly also suggested cuts in the military budget as a means of lowering the deficit.

"Most of us believe there's so much fat in the military that that could be sliced considerably," Connelly said. "That's one obvious way to lower the deficit."

Ahmad Murad, chairman of Eastern's economic department, agreed that a tax hike will be needed to cut the deficit. "I think, yes, a tax increase is necessary," Murad said, adding that any increase will probably be "increases in existing taxes" rather than the imposition of new taxes.

However, Martin Owens, director of the Charleston Area Chamber of Commerce, said he is opposed to a federal tax increase.

"I guess we're all anticipating a small tax increase," Owens said Sunday. "But, personally, I don't favor an increase."

"I think Congress could do a lot better job than they're doing (managing federal spending)," he added. "I don't think Congress has been particularly fiscally responsible, and they're blaming it (the deficit) on the president."

State Representative Michael Weaver, R-Charleston, said Sunday a federal tax increase would "certainly have an effect" on Illinois' economy, and would probably hurt in Springfield.

One example Weaver cited is the current eight-cent federal tax on cigarettes, which was previously slated to be dropped by the government.

Had it been dropped, Weaver said, Illinois could have imposed its own eight-cent tax without any noticeable rise in the price of cigarettes.

According to Weaver, a state take-over of the current federal cigarette tax would have given Illinois an additional $80 million per year in tax revenue.

However, due to federal efforts to lower the deficit, the government will probably keep the tax under its own jurisdiction, ending Illinois' chances for the additional revenue.

Although Connelly agreed with the concept of a tax increase to stabilize the economy, he was uneasy about such a decision being influenced by the Reagan administration.

Connelly noted that, during Reagan's first term, the president pushed through Congress tax-breaks to the upper-class as part of the "trickle-down" theory of economics.

According to the theory, giving corporations and big-business more financial freedom will cause those people to invest their added revenue, which, in turn, will revitalize the economy.

Current proposals by Democrats on the Senate Budget Committee are a virtual about-face from that theory, and would impose higher taxes on business.

"Eighty percent of the tax break went to those, making over $80,000 a year," Connelly noted, adding that he has "never seen any evidence" that the theory works. "The Democrats have always believed the middle class are going to put money immediately into the economy where it's needed (rather than the upper-class)."

And, although Murad maintained that "trickle-down never works," Weaver defended the theory.

"Capitalism is really what built this country," Weaver said. "We have a mistaken belief in this country that when we tax corporations, they pay the tax. They don't pay it, they pass it on to the consumers."

Panthers, fans get 'high five' for great season

The Panthers made the tournament-winning last-second shot—figuratively speaking.

Eastern's 75-64 title game win over Southwest Missouri Sunday at Lantz Gym not only gave the Panthers their first tournament championship, it also capped one of the school's finest college basketball campaigns.

For starters, Eastern recorded its first 20-win season this year since becoming a member of Division I in 1981. The Panthers finished the year at 20-10.

It was also the best record under fifth-year coach Rick Samuels, who began his coaching tenure while the Panthers were still a Division II team.

This season was boosted by the dynamic efforts of Player of the Year Jon Collins and company.

Though the team opened 4-5 overall, it finished with a five-game win streak, a third-place finish in the AMCU, and the post-season tournament crown.

It seemed apparent the odds were destined to go Eastern's way.

The Panthers learned they would host the final Friday when they were within four minutes of winning their game over Western.

The crowd at Lantz Gym Sunday was not big, only 2,200, but its presence was felt. While Eastern shot 78 percent in the first half, everyone sensed the win was coming.

A turn-around dunk by Steve Hopkins and a behind-the-back pass from Doug Crook to set up a dunk by Kevin Duckworth were the plays that put the gym on fire.

The 1984-85 men's basketball team should be congratulated. It fought adversity, such as a 4-5 start, three overtime losses and the injuries to Tim Dykstra and Kevin Duckworth, but they came out on top as winners.

Watching games and seeing what a team like this can do to a crowd is proof enough they're No. 1 as far as Eastern Illinois University is concerned.

The Panthers are building a reputation for the school as well as the league; the team was winning proof of that on the court Sunday.

Your turn

Clarifying AB stand

Editor:

I would like to respond to recent letters describing Apportionment Board cuts in the Sports and Recreation budget as unwarranted.

The proposed $3,000 expansion of the student payroll line item did not seek to increase the amount or variety of intramural sports events on campus. The money was directed to increasing referees in flag football (to three referees for 14 players) and volleyball (to two referees for 12 players).

Arguments that additional referees would significantly increase the quality of the competition are unconvincing. These sports have been enjoyed for many years without the additional referees. Participants in intramural sports should assume partial responsibility for the observance of rules, decorum and the resolution of conflicts during competition. This builds social skills much needed in our society. Additional referees would decrease individual responsibility and promote increasingly bitter and intense competition. This is not the purpose of intramural sports.

I must also correct misconceptions about the AB. The AB is a joint student/faculty board making fiscal decisions regarding the disbursement of student fees. We neither dictate programming nor approve requests which fail to meet student needs and AB bylaw requirements. Decisions are made after research, discussion and deliberation. The motion to decrease the student payroll line item by $3,000 was unanimously approved.

Encourage alumni

Editor:

In a recent article on the Telefund, you stated that "that old school spirit doesn't necessarily end for graduates." That's very true, but a fact Alumni Services seem to remember only when seeking donations.

We are alumni living in the Chicago area who remain very dedicated to our Alma Mater: we subscribe to the News to keep up current on campus events; we can't wait to travel south for the Western game (which unfortunately was scheduled for a Thursday this year); and some of us even joined the Alumni Association in hopes of meeting our fellow alums. This year we anxiously awaited the basketball game between Eastern and the University of Illinois-Chicago. We called Alumni Services to see if a reception was scheduled for post-game festivities, only to find that none was for fear no one would show up. Those of us true to the Lantz "pit" decided to gather and cheer our team on, and celebrated the victory in the manner we learned back at Marty's and Ike's. With a few phone calls we found nearly 20 Eastern grads who could make it, and at the game met up with others who stated that they would do most anything to get Eastern people to the game.

In total, nearly 35 Eastern fans attended the game. We believe there is a lot more interest in Eastern here in the Chicago area and encourage those of you on campus to remember us. After all, who could give Eastern better public relations than happy grads? We probably do as much to boost enrollment as the Admissions Office. Plus, we are now members of the working class, the much sought-after donations. But we are starting to wonder what the Alumni Association does for us. We didn't forget you when we left and we do have a lot of that Panther spirit. How about a little encouragement for alumni!

Truth an elusive goal

Editor:

I am writing in response to recent letters by Vice President Schick and Professor Horak concerning the article March 4 about the AAUP lecture.

I don't doubt the assessment that errors occurred in the story dealing with Dr. Schick's lecture. I don't doubt the errors because I know how difficult it is to pursue such an important and elusive goal as truth.

As a journalism instructor and former newspaper journalist, I have come to believe that while truth is indeed the highest goal it is never easy and sometimes even impossible to achieve. But even major errors cannot daunt its pursuit. As inaccuracies inevitably occur, they must be corrected as quickly and for the I compliment Dr. Schick's prompt and objective clarifications and his understanding that media should be participatory. But as an instructor, I am not so sure is productive to limit reaction to the narrow terms Dr. Horak used, that the reporter understood nothing.

Part of the excellence of The Daily Eastern News lies in the fact that it is a student-produced publication. These young persons—many of them teenagers—are guaranteed the right to practice their craft by First Amendment, of course, but more pertinently, by Eastern's dedication to being a teaching institution. Freshmen have much to learn and we hope that learning continues throughout their lives.

Unfortunately, the errors journalists commit become public knowledge. If a history student writes a term paper with an error, those errors are seen only by his instructor. I am certain no Eastern instructor would mortify that student before the entire student body. But that is the risk taken by my students whom I encourage to write for The Daily Eastern News.

Clarification of errors is part of the process of truth. But I do indeed sympathize with the reporter—as well as the nameless editors who may have complicated the misunderstanding the name of improvement—by getting the public humiliation of having erred.

What an accomplishment it is to publish errors and jump right back into the fray before the ink is even dry.

'Experimental' course set for summer session

by Pam Lill

The French Experience, an experimental 15-hour course proposal, will be offered for the first time during intersession and summer school.

The class, which was approved by the Council on Academic Affairs Sept. 27, fulfills the entire nine-hour humanities requirement plus six hours of the social studies requirement.

Steve Whitley, coordinator of the program, said the class includes foreign language, political science, economics, geography, history and fine arts.

The class is an "attempt to provide students with an opportunity to experience general education that is thematic in its approach," Whitley said.

Students who enroll in this class will attend language and history classes during intersession. Classes in social studies, fine arts and an additional language class will be conducted during the summer session.

Whitley said teachers "will know what's going on in other segments" and occasionally several instructors will be in the classroom at one time.

Under this format, students are "free to carry over and return ideas from one area to another," Whitley said. The class is experimental in that sense, he added.

The concept was a joint effort between the College of Arts and Sciences and Fine Arts, Jon Laible, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said.

Faculty members were chosen because they had expertise on France in that area, Whitley said, adding that the instructors will bring a "personal interest" into the classroom.

The French Experience, could be a "very meaningful and productive general education experience that is different," Whitley said.

The grading of the course was one of several problems which arose when this experimental course was coordinated. It was finally decided that the student will receive a grade in each area, Laible said.

Another area of contention concerned what to do with students who already had French instruction equivalent to FRE 1101, "Elementary French." Those students are exempt from the foreign language section and will receive nine hours of credit instead of 15.

The problems encountered, Whitley said, were ones that are "very common when developing something truly interdisciplinary." However, Whitley added that if the course turns out to be an "enriching and enjoyable experience," the mechanical problems will be a secondary concern.

There are many different things that can be done with the course, Whitley said, but "we chose to get our feet wet." The idea is "moving off the drawing board—we'll see how well it flies," he added.

About 15 students are needed for the class to be conducted. Students must register by April 12.

Greenup cleanup effort approaches completion

by Kevin McDermott

After more than two years, the completion of cleanup efforts at the A & F Materials Co. in Greenup is finally in sight.

A & F, which has been cited as Illinois' worst toxic waste site, was closed by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency in June, 1981, after carcinogens and other toxins were discovered leaking from the plant.

Following a federal suit against the company in 1983, the Aluminum Company of America (ALCOA), which had done business with A & F and was named in the lawsuit, agreed to head the cleanup effort.

ALCOA Communications Manager Maggie Robinson, of the Warrick, Ind., ALCOA plant, said last week that the cleanup effort has cost the company "$3 million so far."

However, Robinson could not estimate what ALCOA's final cleaning bill will look like because a new ALCOA-EPA agreement is still under negotiation, following the expiration of the last agreement Dec. 15.

Robinson said she is not sure when the matter will be settled but estimated that the cleanup should be completed about four months after a new agreement is reached.

The cleanup effort has included the removal of toxic materials, contaminated soil and some buildings, and the buying and spreading of "fill-in" soil.

"Right now we feel like everything's right on schedule," Robinson said.

Meanwhile, the Illinois Department of Public Health is still pondering "about a ton" of research data to determine what effects the chemicals may have had on area residents, Mary Huck, IDPH public information officer, said.

"We are in the midst of conducting a study in the Greenup area," Huck said. "We're reviewing all the EPA reports, birth and death rates and so forth."

Huck added that, as one of the final stages of the investigation, the IDPH is developing a questionnaire to be distributed to Greenup residents to determine what affects the chemicals may have had on health and pregnancy in the area.

"We should have (IDPH) people in the area in the last part of April to distribute the questionnaires," Huck said.

Women in religion focus of talk

A combination workshop/lecture on women and their place in religion will be held from 7-9:30 p.m. Monday at the Wesley Foundation, 2022 4th St.

Sheila Ruth, a professor of philosophy and women's studies at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville, will speak on "Woman of Spirit, Woman of Power," as part of Women's History and Awareness Month, Peggy Brayfield, chairman of Eastern's Women's Studies Council, said.

The program will focus on women in religion on a "broader view than in any individual church," Brayfield said.

"It won't be from any denominational religious standpoint," she said.

Also, Ruth will discuss women's origins from the traditional religious point of view as well as the non-traditional point of view, Brayfield added.

Matrarchal and matriligious viewpoints will also be discussed, in addition to some meditational religious experiences and ritual experiences, she said.

The program is free and open to the public.

Sarah Bush offers scholarships

A volunteer organization at the Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center is offering four scholarships totalling $5,000 to college students going into health-related fields.

Minnie Hopkins, a Sarah Bush Lincoln volunteer and chairman of the Sarah Bush Lincoln guild scholarship committee, said one scholarship of $2,000 and three scholarships of $1,000 each will go to four students to attend the college of their choice.

Hopkins said the only condition for the scholarship is that the applicant have a B average or above and that he or she be accepted to a college or university under a health-related program.

Applications are available at the health center or by calling the guild. The deadline for submitting applications is April 30.

Phalen captures crown

by Julie Zook

Junior Lori Phalen walked away with the honors after Saturday night's Miss Charleston-Delta Chi Pageant.

Phalen placed first, with junior Julie Broom as first runner-up, junior Jean Duffy as second runner-up and sophomore Dana Shuton as the talent winner, according to Delta Chi president Jim Williams.

"I had a fantastic time. The girls were great. It was like God just poured his blessings out on me," Phalen said.

"I'm really excited about state. I'm really looking forward to that. God just gave me a lot of blessings," she said.

Phalen performed a self-choreographed gymnastics routine to the Electric Horseman, in addition to being judged on an evening gown sequence and an interview.

The seven-minute interview was based on current event questions, which Phalen said "went fantastic."

Lori Phalen

Phalen is now eligible to compete in the Miss Illinois contest scheduled for July 10-13 in Elgin. The winner of that contest will proceed to the Miss America pageant, Williams said.

Cagers 'all dressed up with no place to go'

by Michael Chron

"It's kind of like being all dressed up and no place to go," Eastern forward Doug Crook said in a jubilant Panther locker room Sunday afternoon after the Panthers defeated Southwest Missouri State 75-64 for the Association of Mid-Continent Universities Conference title.

By virtue of its win, Eastern gave coach Rick Samuels his first 20-win season since taking over the reigns in 1980. It was also the first time Eastern posted 20 victories since becoming a member of Division I.

And despite the Panthers' late-season surge, neither Eastern athletic director R.C. Johnson or

See related story, page 13

Samuels were holding their breath for a phonecall Sunday night from the selection committee of the NCAA or the NIT tournaments.

"Should our phone ring tonight (Sunday), I would answer it and say 'yes,'" Samuels stated following the dramatic and emotional victory.

"I don't care if a call came in and they asked us to play in Anchorage, Alaska, I'd tell them we'd be there ready to play the next night."

Realistically, though, expectations were not high for a magic phonecall.

"When you look at it though, we're good enough to be invited to the NIT," Samuels emphasized.

"We've played a competitive schedule and we've won our last five games in a row. And add to this that we won 20 games during the season in Division I, I believe we would make an attractive opponent."

But the fifth-year coach added, "what do I really think our chances are of receiving an invitation are? Probably less than 50-50," he stated.

Regardless of the phonecall which Samuels and his team wanted to come Sunday night, one fact remains. You can't take anything away from this 1984-85 team.

"We played our most emotional game ever today," Crook said while wiping the sweat from his forehead. "We were really fired up for the game. We wanted to win and we expected to win."

"Our crowd got us into this game and when the first few baskets started dropping, it had a contagious effect. We went into the game with a positive feeling and the crowd really fired us up," Crook added.

The junior sharpshooter, who finished with a team-high 16 points, wasn't the only player to mention the positive effect of the crowd.

"The fans were great," added forward Steve Hopkins, who finished the afternoon with 13 points. "Our fans really came to life when the Southwest Missouri fans entered the gym. Our fans came to life and that set the tone for the game."

"I don't think they (the fans) realize the importance of getting involved in the game and what it does for the team," Hopkins added.

Entering the room at the end of the conversation was junior Kevin Duckworth, who is still nursing an injury to his right hand.

"Don't forget to mention how much our fans inspired us. Man, they're great!"

The 2,253 fans had something to yell about from the outset. In the first half, Eastern shot a sizzling 78 percent from the field, making 18 of 23 shots. In the second 20 minutes of action, Samuel's squad sank 15 of 26 shots, giving Eastern a sizzling 67 percent total for the game.

It was also the final collegiate game for five seniors; Tim Dykstra, who has been injured most of the year; Troy Richardson; Paul Nedig; Dirk Androff, and Hopkins.

But it was a game those five seniors and other cagers on the squad for that matter won't soon forget.

Prior to the start of the championship finale, Eastern's cheerleaders had a stuffed teddy bear which was slung about and thrown against the wall. The Southwest Missouri Bears were getting a preview of what was in store for them the next 40 minutes.

Sunday belonged to Eastern. Only if the telephone had rung Sunday night at Samuels, the Panthers would really have celebrated.

Senior Steve Hopkins slams home the dunk that got Eastern rolling Sunday en route to their AMCU tournament title win. Hopkins made good on six of

Collins tabbed AMCU Player of Year

by Ken Dickson

Eastern's Jon Collins was named the Association of Mid-Continent Universities' Player of the Year Friday.

Meanwhile, the Panthers' Dirk Androff was named to the AMCU All-Conference second team.

Collins, a 6-foot-4 junior forward who was a member of the All-Newcomer team last season, finished his second season in a row as the conference's second-leading scorer. He finished the season with an 18.6 scoring and 4.0 rebounding averages.

The forward, who was a member of the AMCU All-Newcomer team last season, also became a member of Eastern's 1,000-point scoring club. He finished the season with 21-straight games of scoring in double figures with a season-high of 28 points.

Androff, a senior forward who led the AMCU in field goal percentage at 65 percent, was one of five players on the second team. He averaged about 12 points and six rebounds for Eastern this season.

In addition, the league's coaches named Cleveland State's Kevin Mackey as coach of the year. Mackey turned the Vikings around from a 8-20 mark in 1983 to a 21-8 record this year and an outright AMCU-8 crown.

Magee shines despite NCAA performance

Senior Claude Magee made a lone appearance at the NCAA-Division I National Championship track meet at Syracuse University this weekend.

Clockwise from right: Magee, the only trackster to qualify for the NCAA track and field meet from Eastern, attempts to advance to the finals in the long jump.

Eastern assistant coach Tom Akers watches from the stands as Magee jumps. Only press, meet officials and participants were allowed on the track. Coaches had to remain in the stands.

Magee stretches out in preparation for his chance to long jump.

After scratching on his first two attempts and failing to qualify for the finals on his last jump, Magee sits and contemplates his performance. See related story, page 11.

Magee comes up short at nationals

by Març Pacatte

Eastern men's track standout Claude Magee is philosophical about his performance at the NCAA-Division I national championship at Syracuse University this past weekend.

"I at least wanted to make it to the finals," Magee said Sunday after returning from competing in the long jump in New York.

The senior scratched on his first two qualifying jumps, and his third and final jump of 23' 2" "wasn't good enough," he said.

Jumpers had to have gone at least 25'1½" sometime during the indoor season to travel to the championships, and Magee had jumped 25'2¼" earlier in the season.

"At first it bothered me" that he didn't get farther in the competition, he said. "I wanted to be an All-American."

He added, however, that "when I got to thinking about it, I had only had three weeks of practice on the long jump and I was thankful just for getting there."

Magee added "it was a fluke I even made it," since he hadn't jumped in two years.

There were 24 competing at the Syracuse meet. "They took eight to the finals" on Saturday after Friday's qualifying round, Magee said.

"It was a great meet," he added. "The field in long jump was really an excellent field."

Magee said he's now looking forward to the outdoor season, which gets underway March 23 with a meet at Mississippi State.

Midwest Championships

Tankers wrap up season, take sixth

by Joe Lewnard

CHICAGO-Eastern's men's swim team wrapped up its season this weekend at the Midwest Championship Meet with a sixth place finish out of a twelve team field.

Eastern head coach Ray Padovan said the sixth place finish was "as good as we could have hoped." Overall, the coach was rather pleased with the way his squad completed its season.

"Individually it was a really good meet," he said. "Many of the men did their lifetime best, and most of them met their personal goals for the season."

"I was really happy because the whole team contributed to the meet," Padovan added.

Among Eastern's top performers were junior Steve Dempsey and senior Mike Schulewitz. Dempsey placed second in the 200 yard freestyle, fourth in the 100 yard freestyle, and fifth in the 50 yard freestyle.

Schulewitz placed fourth and fifth in the one and three meter diving competition.

Padovan said he feels good as he looks back on the entire season. "When we started in November, we were pointing toward this meet."

"There were one or two dual meets that we could have won, but we sacrificed them for this meet," Padovan pointed out. "If we had concentrated our efforts on them and had taken longer rest periods from our workouts, we could have won them. But we might not have done so well this weekend if that had happend."

Padovan added that "the freshmen have come a long way this season and were fairly competitive."

Looking forward to next season, Padovan added, "we have to work out some problems such as recruiting, but I have been talking to several people who appear to be interested in our program. The problem is that we have so little to offer them as compared to other schools."

"The program still functions well though," he said.

Padovan is also bothered by the fact that six seniors will be graduating this year. "This is a lot because we only have fifteen swimmers on the team, though we should be picking up a few good swimmers next year."

Title win is bittersweet for Dykstra

by Jeff Long

Tim Dykstra dressed quietly Sunday afternoon in the Panthers' victorious lockerroom.

As teammates, coaches and friends exchanged handshakes and high fives, Dykstra preferred to remain in the background. For him, the celebration was bittersweet.

"It's sad to leave," the senior sighed. "I've had a disappointing season. Your senior year is supposed to be a special one, but for me just the opportunity to play was special."

When the Panthers broke camp last fall, Dykstra was slated for a banner season after returning from a year of Olympic competition in which he competed for the U.S. Olympic handball team.

After all, the Olympian was returning to the team stronger than ever and was ready to finish his college basketball career with a bang.

However, a broken wrist suffered 10 games into the season put Dykstra on the sidelines for the next 15 games—certainly a big dent in morale for somebody of Dykstra's competitive nature.

As he watched his team compile 10 wins in his absence, the 6-5 forward was limited to running and dribbling with his left hand. Dykstra went nearly seven weeks without on-the-court play.

But nobody would have guessed that after seeing Dykstra spark the Panthers to a five-game winning streak (longest of the season) since his return and their first AMCU title.

"I think his presence was the catalyst that got us over the hump," Eastern head coach Rick Samuels assessed. "His competitive nature helped us pick things up again."

Dykstra was instrumental in propelling Eastern to the championship game, hitting five of nine field goal attempts for 10 points at Western Illinois on Friday, including a pair of key baskets late in the game.

He picked up where he left off Sunday against Southwest Missouri. After entering the game at 12:33 of the first half, Dykstra proceeded to can his first four shots to erase any doubt he was back to old form.

Still, it was not a dream season for the four-year letterman.

"After getting back in shape, I got into a groove and suddenly it's over," he said. "I felt real good the last couple of weeks."

"The people I'll remember most from this season are my teammates and coaches. They mean more than any individual accomplishments. They're super people who really helped me get through all the adversity and rough times."
